Mobile Application Development

Class Discussion

1. How and where have websites traditionally saved data on client side? What are the limitations of saving data in this way?
2. What other alternatives are available for saving data on the client side?